

NANCY WYNNE IS INTERESTED IN THE COMING DEBUTANTES

Various Teas, Garden Parties, Dinners and Dances Are Already Being Arranged for the Little Bud of 1916-1917—Many to Be Introduced

ONE of the very first of the wee debs of the coming year to be entertained will be the little Miss Elizabeth Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip W. Miller, who live out at Belford, St. David's. The Charles Bingham Penrose will give her a small dinner-dance at their home on the Main Line. Then another very attractive debutante will be Mrs. Katherine Hancock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hancock and a cousin of the two Briston girls, who came out year before last. Anna and Caroline Briston. Katherine is extremely good looking and will be sure to have a splendid time. She will be introduced at a tea to be given by her parents at the Toplears, their place in St. David's, on October 6.

Mary Brooks is another extremely pretty girl with very exceptional coloring. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brooks, of 235 South 18th street, and a sister of Eddie Brooks, who trots about to all the parties. Mary is going to have a good time. I have no doubt. Miss Maria Gross is a charming girl, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Haller Gross and a niece of the various members of the Bullitt family. She is a first cousin of Jack, William and Orville Bullitt, the sons of the late William Bullitt, and their mother, who was a Miss Horwitz, is closely related to Mr. Gross. Then Logan Bullitt, Jr., Jean and Richard, all the children of the Logan Bullitts, are also cousins. Her half-brother married Alice Wright, the daughter of the Charles B. Wright, and altogether you will agree with me she could not have much better connections to assure her first winter's success. Many of these girls appeared at recent charity affairs, where they acted as aides at the various booths. Speaking of the recent charity fetes, did you know that a firm at 17th and Walnut streets sent photographers up to the Flower show at Rittenhouse Square to take by a new method actual direct photographs of many of the prominent women who were engaged in the good work, which reproduce the colors just as they are? Agnes Brockie, Hannah Wright, Emily Philler and Mrs. David E. Williams are only a few of those whose photos are being displayed at this remarkable establishment in exact color reproduction.

All the high and mighty in the world of music came down from their exalted perches last night when the Musical Arts and the members of the Musical Arts Club gave a dinner in honor of Mr. Leopold Stokowski at their club. It was as unusual as it is possible to have one. There were speeches by Mr. William Jay Turner, Mr. Henry Gordon Tupper, Mr. Andrew Wheeler and others. Among the guests were Mr. Charles Braun, Mr. Edwin Evans, Mr. Clarence Bawden, Mr. Cesare Sturani, Mr. Nicholas Douty, Mr. Camille Zeckwer, Mr. Hans Kinder, Mr. Thaddeus Rich, Mr. Charles Bond, Mr. Thomas Martinelli, Dr. E. I. Keffer and Mr. S. L. Leduc. Not one note of music was sung or played, the artists enjoying for one evening a complete change of program.

A number of persons have been highly amused at the many mix-ups which have occurred recently in a certain well-known family, where two cousins, one a woman advanced in years and the other many years her junior, both have and hold the same name. Strange to say, they both indulge in the use of the pen. The elder woman has a name which is known over the English-speaking world as a finished writer of English prose. The younger one, who, by the way, was named for the elder, is working on the staff of a well-known paper and is much interested in the various bits of news which the may gather for her paper. Incidentally she is just now conducting the publicity for a large out-of-doors affair which will be given in June, and has accordingly written to many prominent citizens who will take part in the festival for their photos that layouts may be made in the papers. Incidentally also she signs a small II to her name, but in many cases this has been overlooked by the readers and the elder cousin has been inundated with photos of prominent men and, furthermore, has received letters stating that she might purchase their photos at the photographer's. Apparently they had been asked for from the tone of the letters accompanying the photographs. So without thinking there might have been some mix-up as had happened twice before, much to her cost— for she has even gone to the expense of having typed cards sent to her friends and, in fact, the whole social register, to state that she is not connected with any paper and has even had persons put into one journal—she wrote to one of our papers to state in a letter that she was not asking for the papers, but would appreciate them if sent as a present to her. When the young reporter telephoned to her to ask what it all meant the lady in question smiled to see the humor of the situation and refused to have anything to say. Her prestige as a writer and lecturer is such that it can scarcely injure her to be thought a newspaper writer for the time being, for even though some may look down on us and, by the way, newspaper writers do have brains as well as others, we manage to worry along pretty well and love one another.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Leslie Davis, of 135 South 18th street, have gone to Lexington, Ky., for a short stay.

The friends of Mr. Clarence C. Peters will be glad to hear that he has returned from Atlantic City, where he was recuperating after several weeks' illness.

SAILOR HATS ONCE MORE IN VOGUE

More "Charlies" Worn on Wooden Way Than Other Sports Hats

ATLANTIC CITY, May 22.—The sailor hat, which has not been very generally worn at the shore since the days when the Horse Show was one of the gay events of the spring season, came into its own on the Walk today and quite outclassed all the other styles of sports hats. The green sailor of finely woven straw with a narrow brim and a high crown is a great favorite. Short, bare necks just reaching the top of the nose are worn with small chapeaus.

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Pequin, Mr. Frank Ward, Mr. Raymond C. Ward and Miss A. d'Inville, who motored down for the week-end, returned to Philadelphia yesterday.
